Braintree High School welcomed many new changes this year. Pouring into the building on the first day of school were 1400 students, the most that the school has held for years. A new housemaster, Mr. Hurstak, joined Mr. Swanton in greeting students entering the building. Eleven new teachers replaced those that had left, and students and faculty alike looked forward to working with these fresh additions. The gym was painted red, white, and blue over the summer, giving it a bright, renewed look. A new smoking policy was established - one that included immediate suspensions and smoking cessation programs for offenders. The new school year held many possibilities for students - whether the goal was to achieve honor roll status or to be accepted to college. All looked forward to the experiences the new year would hold. This was to be the year of hope and anticipation. This was to be the year for "our time to shine."

PEOPLE Brilliant Beginnings

It's 6:15 in the morning and you hear your alarm clock buzzing nonstop in your ear. Realizing this is not the noise of your little sister watching television, you rush out of bed and into the shower.

Somehow you manage to be at school by homeroom, although God knows how you did it. This is the morning routine that most students at Braintree High followed - falling into school half asleep, their minds still dozing. Busy schedules brought late nights completing homework, and students find their few hours of sleep precious. Sports practice, clubs, and work kept most occupied after school ended. No matter how busy students were, they always managed to find a few minutes for fun with their friends.

A Glimmer of Fashion

Walking down the hallway of Braintree High School, one finds many different types of people, each with his or her own sense of fashion and style. Some students gelled their hair into spikes, dyed their hair, pierced various body parts, or wore attention-grabbing clothing in their quest for individuality. Others just rolled out of bed in the morning and fell into school wearing whatever happened to be closest. Some girls dressed up, wearing skirts or dresses, and baseball hats remained a popular favorite among boys and girls alike. Most students agreed that there were definite fashion don'ts. Amanda Keady and Paula Famolare agreed, "Clam diggers - no. Just no." No matter each student's individual style, all brought their own unique appearances to the BHS fashion scene. Janine Tangney

Scarves and backpacks were common among female students. Richardi

T-shirts, shorts, and funky hats were among the clothes worn for the warmer weather. Baseball hats remained a popular favorite.

Weekends: A Ray Of Light

When the bell rings on Friday afternoon, swarming masses of students and faculty run from the school in anticipation of the weekend. Many people had to work during their two days off, but most found time to hang out with their friends. Favorite activities included gathering in the high school parking lot for social recreation, watching movies at people's houses, and eating out. Homework was also a major priority in the lives of students. The weekends often proved a busy time with work and fun.

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT

Welcome to high school. There's so much to do, and so little time to do it in. You get up in the morning, rub your eyes a little to wake yourself up, stumble into the shower, and somehow manage to come out dressed. Maybe you eat breakfast, or maybe you just don't have time this morning, because you're really late. So you drive yourself to school, drinking your coffee really fast in an effort to keep yourself awake. Or else you ride the big yellow school bus, and pray that you get to school alive, because the bus driver has a tendency to take really sharp corners. And you arrive. The building looks a little like a jail, but you deal with it because you're still not awake. When you get inside, lugging your back-big for you to pick anywhere, you see And that seems to because these people you haven't seen day. So you talk to your backpack on the your shoulder any-plain, you laugh, you then good old Mr. the loudspeaker :

pack that's way to up, let alone carry people you know. wake you up a bit, are your friends, and them since yester-them, and you dump floor so it's not on more. You com-relax a little, and Wassel comes over "Two minutes until the homeroom bell. All students should be in homeroom." So you hustle yourself to homeroom, salute the flag, and vegetate until the bell rings. Then you move to first period, where you either work hard or catch up on sleep from the night before. Second period brings a test, and you're a little stressed out about it. You either do well because you studied, or you fail because you didn't. Between classes you rush to your locker and grab your books, talking to people during the only three minutes you'll have to yourself for another fifty minutes. Lunch eventually comes. You eat a lot, drink, and talk, and that's the best part of the whole twenty five minutes. Three more classes if you eat A lunch, two if you eat C. Moving right along, you finish your day without any life threatening problems. Perhaps the most stressful part of your day is what happens after the bell rings at 2:05. You have sports, or you have to work, or you have a club meeting, or you have year-book. Or maybe you have all of these in one afternoon. And somehow you have to do all this, and do that big paper that you forgot is due tomorrow. You finally make your way home, tired and not looking forward to that forgotten homework. You eat (thank God, because you're starving) and work, yet again. You've been working all day long. It takes you three hours to write that paper, and it wipes you out. You take a break, talk on the phone for a bit, and return to the dreaded homework. Finally, you pass out at some late hour, still holding the book that you were studying out of. And then the alarm buzzes in your ear. Welcome to high school. Janine Tangney

Radiating STRESS

As students began the new school year, many found it very difficult to balance school, extracurricular activities, homework, and a job. Difficult courseloads made some students stressed out about their grades, especially seniors. Seniors found the pressure of SATs and applying to college mounting with each passing day. Caitlin Phillips put a positive spin on the college application process, saying, "Don't worry about how good your transcript is. You'll get into the place that's right for you." Guidance counselors and teachers urged students to sit back and enjoy the ride while working hard. Most found a happy medium - studying in school and spending time with friends to relax.

A Sparkle of Radiance

The pressure is on. You have to rent a limo. You have to buy the dress or the suit. You have to get a corsage or a boutonniere. And you have to do this all in a week because you just got your date yesterday. And after all this rushing, the day comes. Decked out in their best, students poured into the school on May 16, 1998. The prom pit was decorated with silver balloons, stars, and blue streamers, and for a memorable experience for all. Most friends got together before and after the dance, enjoying each other's company. Erin Carroll and Joe Donovan had the honor of being voted Junior Prom Queen and King. In the end, everyone danced the night away, and everyone looked wonderful that night.

"The best class picture I've ever taken!" declared McGrath's photographer Jack Purdy as he perched on the roof top of the high school, and aimed his camera down on 300 proud seniors wearing shirts. After lengthy Mr. Wassel, the opted for a site-generic bleachers photo to behind the most vertical shot. To the Class of 1999,

I am sure that most of you will agree that the four years you spent at Braintree High School went by very quickly. Each of you has made a decision as to what direction your lives will go after you leave us. We, the entire staff at B.H.S., hope that you feel that we have helped you make that decision and have prepared you for the exciting years to come.

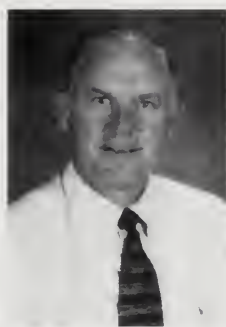

We sincerely wish that all of your future endeavors be successful ones and that your lives be productive. The Class of 1999 has left its mark on B.H.S., and we will always have fond memories of you.

Good luck! May you bring credit to your family, our school, and our community.

Sincerely yours,

Spotlight On Faculty

All students realize that their lives are cluttered and filled with things to do, people to see, and papers to write. But not all realize that teachers' lives are also hectic and stressful at times. Although the faculty at Braintree High love their jobs (we hope!), there is much work and effort that goes into the teaching profession. Mrs. Carroll commented, "Teaching is a very rewarding profession, but I always feel that I could do better if I just... So I'm always working to change by approaches." Some don't understand the amount of time put into teaching. Many students comment, "They don't have to do homework or take tests." Perhaps not, but they spend countless hours making up the homework and tests, as well as correcting them. In addition, many teachers devote their time after school to students in need of extra help or counseling. Some also give hours to the clubs that they advise or the sports that they coach. Of course, their families also demand attention and love. In the busy lives of students, sometimes the teachers' lives are ignored. But it must be remembered that without the teachers, there would be no Braintree High School. Janine Tangney

Mrs. Spencer and Mrs. Ripley were always known as a team at BHS.

A Path of Shining Glory

Twenty-seven years ago, a young lady by the name of Kathleen Spencer began her stellar teaching career with the Braintree Public Schools. Like a comet that steadily grows in the horizon, this beautiful and talented English teacher grew to full glory when she became housemaster for House One at Braintree High School four years ago.

In June of 1998, this shooting star was no longer in view because Mrs. Spencer had moved on to another school system where she accepted the position as principal of Carver High School and became their beacon in the sky.

However, a new comet can be seen on the horizon with Mr. John Hurstak, the new housemaster for House One. Like Mrs. Spencer, Mr. Hurstak is a former English teacher with many years of dedication to his professional career. We know that he will be the next guiding light of help and encouragement for the students, faculty and staff at Braintree High School. We welcome him as he begins his walk on the path of shining glory.

STUDENT LIFE

Sunny days, Starry Nights

Students throughout the hallways at Braintree High School can always be heard discussing their plans for the upcoming week and much anticipated weekend. But then again one can always hear the cries of the highly stressed student. One can relate these stresses to jobs, sports, homework, and many extracurricular activities that many students feel they can handle, but soon realize that it is impossible to live a stress free life and accomplish all that you want to. The weekends proved to be a time that was looked forward to tremendously during the school week. Weekends were a time that allowed a student to wind down and relax unless you were that student that was constantly late for work on Saturday and Sunday mornings and continuously found your place in the workforce threatened. Friday and Saturday nights were set aside for friends and couples to get together and socialize. And Sundays were the day of relaxation for most students. Some students found that taking in a movie at the cinema on Sunday night was a good way to relax and forget about the fact that they had school in the morning. And others just slept all day. A major problem that arose with many seniors was the wonderful college process. Many students in fact planned their deaths numerous times during this very difficult period of time.

"The college process was both the worst experience and the best experience I have had, but I really couldn't wait until the whole thing was over, because then I could finally take a minute and actually remember what it was like to have a life." stated senior Kristin Hadley. Whether you were the most stressed and frustrated student in the school or the most easy going, students soon realized that no matter how hectic the schedule of a high school student gets for the most part, it could only get better after the first half of the year is over.

Fun in the Sun

The summer finally arrived. The moment that everyone had been looking forward to since February vacation had come, and it was time to live it up. Students poured out of the building on the last day to go to parties, relax, and just enjoy themselves.

While summer was definitely a time for hanging at the beach and going out every night (because there were no school nights!), everyone had a certain amount of responsibility that went with this. Most students had to work, and these hours of money making went toward car insurance or social lives. Some students also went to camp for their special sport or club. These camps were a way to keep up skills while having fun at the same time. Some students went on long trips away from home with their families. These trips provided some needed time away from Braintree, and students were ready to see missed friends when they arrived home. Senior Erin Carroll said, "It was good to get away, but forced family fun can wear thin on the nerves."

Students found different ways to make the summer interesting. Senior Amanda Petitti commented, "Going to concerts is a good way to liven up the summer when the norm gets monotonous." Everybody had a great vacation, which allowed them to come back to Braintree High School well rested and ready for school. Janine Tangney

TRIPS TO HARMONY THROUGH CULTURE & SCIENCE

Field trips serve two purposes. First, they are entertaining breaks from the classroom, and secondly, they provide students unique opportunities to learn outside a classroom environment. Mr. Cremer's and Mr. Swift's physics classes took a trip to the Titanic exhibit held at the Boston World Trade Center. This excursion allowed students to learn physics through a new perspective. Another field trip taken was to the Monet exhibit at the Museum of Fine Arts. Ms. Grassie's and Ms. Yorke's language classes and Ms. Cunningham's and Ms. Devaney's english classes took the opportunity to observe the paintings of the popular French Impressionist. In November, a group of students attended the fifth annual Team Harmony event at the Fleet Center. They were joined by over 12,000 other students from around New England to help overcome racism and promote unity. Students "learned about the need to come together as one," said Alicia Settles. Eugene Hendrix commented, "A lot of teens poured positive influence on each other."

Besides going on field trips in and around Boston, students were given the opportunity to travel overseas as part of the Spanish Exchange Program. This has been an annual event since the early 80's until now. "The students lived with their families in two different towns in Madrid. The students got to go to school and visit many areas around the town that they stayed in," remarked Jeannine Hale. Spanish teacher Mrs. Smith, "hopes to have enough students involved because it's a very fun experience, and everyone always has a wonderful time." Without field trips, the learning experience can be very dull. Fortunately, students are given the chance to expand their horizons in and outside the classroom. Mehreen Palwala

FIRING UP THE SPIRIT

Homecoming week brought out many different aspects of student life at Braintree High School. Whether it was plaid day, college sweatshirt day, or blue and white day, the students always showed a great amount of spirit. And of course, one can always find Susie Grow leading the throughout the festive annual Homecoming some highlights of the proved to be a great dent body and football game that night Braintree High's foot-shined that night and against its opponent, and excitement that the high school, the duced a new event, the Mr. Fetsko and his proved to be a great faculty, and their fami-to a thousand dollars for future scholarships. Not only were there burgers, hot dogs, and moonwalks, a huge bonfire was lit to cap the night off. The most popular activity was the "hit the teacher/headmaster in the face with a wet sponge." Senior Tim Clark stated, "The Pow Wow was a lot of fun, I had a great time cooking the burgers and hotdogs for all the people!" Overall, homecoming week proved to be a really vibrant and fun filled week, as it has been every year in the past. Both students and faculty look forward to the week as a time for everyone to get together and be in good spirits, as Junior Julie Covits stated, "Homecoming week is so much fun, I especially like that everyone is so excited and are in such good moods all week long." Bryan Jamele

Under the Shimmering Sea

Braintree High School's annual homecoming dance proved to be a great time for all who attended on that cold October night. The theme was "Under the Sea" and the cheerleaders did a wonderful job decorating the gym to tie into the theme. Erin Carroll and Nislo Galveo were chosen senior king and queen by their classmates. Among other winners for that night were Lisa Crowley (junior homecoming queen), Katie Carroll (sophomore homecoming queen), and Kara Vannick (freshman homecoming queen). Whether you went with a significant other, or just a friend, everyone had a good time dancing under the shimmering sea. Bryan Jamele

Shining Stars at Work

Work, work, work. Most students at Braintree High School found that some kind of employment was necessary to maintain a certain standard of living. Whether the goal was to pay off car insurance, buy a new stereo, or just pay for the movies on Saturday night, working became a means of gaining needed money. Students flocked to the South Shore Plaza for jobs, working in such stores as Baby Gap, Express, and Sears. Others worked at dry cleaning places, such as Dependable Cleaners and Danny's Cleaners. Some tutored through the National Honor Society, and others babysat friends or relatives to make a little extra cash. Senior Kerry Saniuk said, "Babysitting is my way to make money!" Regardless of how much the job was needed or wanted, students could be heard moaning through the hallways, "I have to work this afternoon!!" These jobs consumed hours of time, but the work paid off when the check arrived once a week.

Teachers at Braintree High School were also consumed with their jobs of instructing students. The work was at times stressful, but the success of their students brought joy in the end. Some students went to school with one of their parents, and their schedules sometimes clashed with work and school. These jobs sometimes conflicted, but parents and students found that some unique benefits could be found in going to school together. Junior Michael Rountree, who goes to school with his mother, Marie Rountree, commented, "She gives me money when I need it. And it's kind of like having two lockers. I can keep my books in her office. But the disadvantage is that she knows everything about what I do in school." Teacher Mrs. Sullivan, who goes to school with her daughter, Susie, said, "The best part about coming to school with Susie is having her drop me off at the front door now that she has her license."

Teachers and students alike found that in the end, the work paid off with the satisfaction that came from it. And, of course, there was that nice hefty pay check that came once a week. Janine Tangney

Schedules of the Stars

So much to do, so little time. Students at Braintree High found their lives increasingly busy with after school activities, jobs, school work, and other responsibilities. With the mounting pressure of college applications and difficult classes, some found senior year more difficult than ever before. Not only did normal homework and studying have to be juggled along with jobs and clubs, but students had to apply to college, as well. Free time was often cut out of each school day and replaced with responsibilities, and the weekend became the only time available for recreation. The weekend became a time for needed relaxation from the pressures of everyday life. School was definitely a challenge, but many students thrived on their busy schedules, and succeeded in both school and other activities. Janine Tangney

Shining a Light on Relationships

Walking down the hallway, friends and couples alike could be seen giving each other big hugs, offering support, teasing one another, or even fighting. Relationships were an integral part of high school - and they had the potential to either make your day really great, or wreck it entirely. Most people made a few close friends whom they told their secrets to, and they also found a group of people that they liked to hang around with on the weekends and after school. Friendships were often stable, at other times, shaky.

Coming into high school, many freshmen found their little circle of people slowly drifting toward other friends and different relationships. Others kept their friendships from middle school, and they were further strengthened through the experiences of high school. Throughout the course of four years at Braintree High School, some relationships were broken, but others emerged healthy and strong.

The ups and downs of life were definitely greatly helped by the guidance of caring friends and significant others, and these important people made high school memorable and eventful. Friends definitely made each person's high school years different and fun. Michelle Keady summed it up perfectly. "I don't know what I would do without my friends." Janine Tangney

ACADEMICS

Striving for Excellence

"I'm so happy I did good on this paper!" exclaimed senior Bryan Jamele in his AP U.S. History class. For most students striving for academic excellence, every well done essay or test counted. Some students had their own personal academic goals, and many achieved them throughout the year. During the first term, more students achieved honor roll than ever before, and students crowded into the pit to have their pictures taken by Mr. Wassel. Many accomplished science lovers attended the science fair, a selected few walking away proudly with coveted awards. Several students wrote essays on the U.N. that gained them a trip to New York City during the summer. These important accomplishments left students pleased with the work that they had completed, and ready for the challenges that lay ahead. Janine Tangney

RADIATING KINDNESS

THE NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

The National Honor Society seems to be a secret society among high school students. They meet every Tuesday morning in a big room on the first floor and discuss things that are not publicized. But the NHS really isn't a cult. Actually, it does a lot of charity and fundraising work around Braintree. The NHS is run by Mrs. Carol Skill, and the society has gained fame and prestige through its various activities for the school.

Before Thanksgiving, the National Honor Society organized the Alumni Homecoming Day, which allowed college freshmen to return to Braintree High and tell students about their experiences in their new schools. The day has been extremely popular throughout the years, and this year was no different. Last year's seniors poured into the building, excited to tell students about their lives. This day was fun for the college freshmen, and it also helped seniors in deciding which college they wanted to attend.

Another project that the NHS has been famous for is the Adopt-a-Family program. The National Honor Society was an active participant in this effort, adopting two families with its own personal funds. Members of the NHS worked closely with the Student Council and shopped personally for the families. During this holiday season, the NHS also organized "Pictures with Santa," which was popular with both the students and the faculty alike. Individual teachers volunteered to be Santa, and the line was always extremely long to have pictures taken for just a small fee.

The National Honor Society is also involved in many other activities. NHS members offer refreshments at ALL school functions, and they can be seen around Braintree selling their famous Wamp Pads or Braintree Historic Afghans. Their fundraising and charity efforts, under the guidance of Mrs. Skill, has prospered, and brought much credit to the National Honor Society.

ACHIEVEMENTS

How do you get to Carnegie Hall? Practice, practice, practice!

This old joke certainly held true for one Braintree High School student. Senior Dennis Tu auditioned for a spot in the All Eastern United States Honors Orchestra. After competing against hundreds of students from throughout the eastern United States, he became one out of only twenty Massachusetts students to receive the honor of being selected. After much practice Dennis participated in a stellar performance in New York's famed Carnegie Hall. First chair cellist, Anne Francis said of Dennis, "He is extraordinary. I am honored to play in the same quartet as him."

The fact is, Dennis is only one of many high achieving students that graced the halls of Braintree High School this year. The talents of these students were broad, everything from outstanding science fair projects to extraordinary theatrical performances.

Geoff Stevens is another perfect example. For several years Geoff has written the holiday plays for the Quincy Center Dinner Theatre. Several teachers have attended the shows and were amazed by his talents. Jenn Kerner remarked, "Geoff is a talented person, who has a lot of charisma and creativity. I am fortunate to have known him for the past four years."

Although Laura Eckleman is only a sophomore, she has already made a lasting impression. Senior Jim Hadley, who has supervised Laura in the tech crew, offered, "It is only once in a long while someone like Laura comes along. Her talents and personality are amazing." T. Clark

WHAT IS A LAB DRAWER?

SCIENCE FAIR AND LABS

Many students found themselves wondering what the purpose of the huge white bus parked out front was. Biology students all knew that it was CityLab, on wheels. Although the bus was the butt of many jokes, it provided many students with the opportunity to use equipment the high school did not have.

The Bus helped train the students for their science fair projects. The 1998 Fair did not fail to disappoint anyone. Hadley Tassinari placed in the fair for the third year in a row. "It has been amazing to watch his project develop for the past three years. He has great potential," said junior Dan O'Leary of Hadley's accomplishment.

The fair also produced many new first, second, and third place winners, several of which were underclassmen. These results assure that BHS will make a strong showing in Science Fairs for years to come. T. Clark

No Shiny, Happy Faces on Test Day

"I'm sitting here staring at this paper, but it looks like it was written in ancient Greek. What was my Math teacher thinking, anyway, when she gave me this test? I studied for this, too. What a wasted hour of my life. Oh, Geez. Maybe I should just run like heck out the door and not come back, because I'm going to fail it anyway. Or maybe I should throw myself on the ground and fake a heart attack. A teacher wouldn't fail someone who's having a heart attack, would she?"

These were the thoughts that commonly passed through many students' minds as they worked their way through their tests. Whether they were in math, science, english, or social studies, tests had the capability of completely making or breaking students' days. They were either ecstatic as they received their well deserved "A," or they looked real sad as they stared down at their less than perfect grade. Studying often helped students to do well on exams; but at other times, nothing would have helped. Many had their own unique studying methods - flashcards, reading chapters out loud, or writing out problems. These different approaches aided students in receiving better grades on their exams.

Students also had to face the difficult PSAT and SAT exams, which pretty much scared the life out of most people. Some attended SAT prep courses, which helped in achieving higher scores. Others just sharpened their pencils and got a good night's sleep before the exam. With all the pressure of applying to college, SAT tests became all the more stressful.

For the first time, the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment tests (MCAS) were given to the tenth graders last year. These tests involved multiple choice, short answer, and essay questions in the areas of math, science, and english. The test was supposed to take a total of thirteen hours, with each section given forty five minutes, but many students took much longer. The town of Braintree did well, but some were less than thrilled with this new addition to standardized testing. Over a three week period, several hours a day were set aside for the MCAS tests, and this left some teachers frustrated with their lost classroom time. However, students in Braintree scored well on the test, and teachers were pleased with their results.

Whether students were just taking an English quiz for five minutes, or laboring away at the three hour long SATs, every one realized that tests would not just disappear. Because no matter how long you closed your eyes, the test was still there waiting for you when you opened them. Janine Tangney

CRUISING THE INTERNATIONAL DATELINE

During the summer of 1998, four Braintree High School students had the opportunity to really shine. Erin Carroll, Bryan Jamele, Joan Magee and Geoff Stevens all spent one week in New York City at the United Nations. These four Braintree High school students were the winners of an essay contest sponsored by the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs. The four students from Braintree went up against three other students from Milton and out of the five chosen for the trip, four were from Braintree. "The trip to New York was the best part of my summer vacation!" stated senior Joan Magee. The students had the pleasure of staying in Manhattan at an extraordinary hotel. Although the students did get to see all the wonderful sights that New York had to offer, they also spent much of their week at the United Nations in conferences on child welfare throughout the world. In addition, they had the pleasure of listening to many guest speakers from around the world talk about their experiences. "I really think that the trip to New York was a great experience and it made me realize how lucky we are to live in a country that has these opportunities," stated senior Erin Carroll.

PERSIAN, ARABIC, OR RUSSIAN ?

In late January I had the pleasure of interviewing one of our international students here at Braintree High School. Abdulkarim Zettili has been attending Braintree High School for three months. He was born in Boston but he moved to Saudi Arabia shortly after he was born. His parents are natives of Algeria. Abdulkarim speaks Arabic and some English. Abdulkarim also said during our interview that he missed his friends in Saudi Arabia. He finds the United States a hard place to live sometimes, but at other times it is an easy place to reside. Luckily though, Abdulkarim has not experienced any discriminating behavior at Braintree High School. We ended our interview with Abdulkarim expressing his belief that his heritage was important, but that he would like to live with American customs as well. However, there are also many other international students besides Abdulkarim in the high school as well. Among them are seniors, Olga Naumov from Russia, Meekyi Tung who is originally from Burma, Jalice Lopes from Cape Verde, and Farhad Zia who came from Iran. These students help to create a diverse and cultural atmosphere at the high school and have opened up other students' eyes to other cultures. -Bryan Jamele

Ray of Light

After a strenuous day of classes, many students were still willing to stick around after school for club activities. Their uplifting attitudes, school spirit, and hard work paid off when they saw others benefit from their efforts. All the community service, including volunteering and fundraising to support the school and town proved successful. Students went out of their way to help others with needs and this helped provide a sense of personal satisfaction. But beyond just the social awareness that clubs offer to the students, getting involved in these activities is a great way to make new friends. Being involved brought students closer to the school environment and it was a great way for students to join together and work as a team.

LIGHTING UP NEW YORK

As the day progressed the tension in the school rapidly came to a head. Over three hundred students were awaiting the most anticipated event of the year: the music trip. In May almost the entire chorus, orchestra and band piled onto three buses and departed for the "city that never sleeps." After a six hour bus ride filled with endless chatting, laughing, and joking the musicians arrived in New York City. Before the actual competition the students were treated to the newest musical on Broadway: "Titanic."

After three days in the Big Apple everyone had seen a Broadway show, walked to the top of the Statue of Liberty, visited Ellis Island, toured the United Nations headquarters, and experienced the view from the top of the Empire State Building. The end of the third day brought the results of the competition.

The awards ceremony was held at a Medieval Times theatre. After a dinner without utensils the winners were announced. Both the orchestra and the chorus received a gold rating, and first place. The band received a silver rating and second place. The jazz band was also honored. Everyone was thrilled with the results. No one could have imagined such a dazzling performance in a national competition.

The rest of the night was filled with a thrilling show of knighthood and horsemanship. The next morning the successful musicians left the city on their triumphant voyage home. Tim Clark

Lighting Up the Stage

This year the Theatre Guild dispelled the old wives tale that Friday the thirteenth was an unlucky day. On Friday and Saturday November 13 and 14 the guild lit up the stage with their stellar performance of "The Madwoman of Chaillot." This 1940s comedy about the attempt of an eccentric old woman to save humanity, left all three audiences in stitches. "I couldn't believe how hard the audiences laughed," exclaimed assistant stage manager Laura Eckelman. Mehreen Palwala, who was part of a nearly sold out Saturday night audience, was thrilled. "I had not idea so many kids were that talented. They're all amazing," remarked the senior.

The production was directed by Mrs. Betsey Wood Budd, a newcomer to BHS dramatics. In her first experience here she left many lasting impressions. Senior Bryan Jamele remarked, "Not only was she a great director, but she also gave me advice on what colleges to look into. I thought that was very generous of her, especially considering her busy schedule." Some, however, were not as impressed. Head of construction Matt Ahern said, "I was really disappointed in the technical aspect of the show. The director hardly left anything for the tech crew to do."

Despite the controversy everyone involved had a huge amount of fun. Freshman Jan Kelly was emphatic, "I am going to do this for the next four years, I love it." Lead actress, Lisa Pendse, who played the Countess herself, said "It certainly is a stressful time, but there is no way to have more fun."

Apparently everyone in the Theatre Guild would verify the truth to that old quote, "The best of memories are born out of the worst of times." T. Clark

SPORTS

Year Of The Wamp

The BHS sports teams turned it up this year, making it "the Year of Wamps". Every sports team contributed to a successful and exciting year. The girls soccer team made it to the quarter finals, the field hockey team had its best season in years, and both basketball teams made it to the playoffs. The football team won the Carey Division title and made it to the Superbowl, using the same hard work and teamwork that is reflected in BHS sports.

VICTORY DELIGHT

Go Wamps! The 1998 Football season is one neither the team nor the school will ever forget. After this year's excellent turnout, Wamps football will never be the same. With a senior dominating team, the boys knew exactly what they wanted and were ready to shine. Coach Tricomi stated at the start of the year, "We have improved our strength, we have good speed at the skill positions and we have a lot of players back. Better than a .500 is a real possibility. Their performance represented their effort and the season was yet to come."

Since the season against the team they have been on a whitewash. As they whitewashed Coach Tricomi "It was the best football team has ever seen."

Even though there were some losses to Natick, the team's victories carried them to the top. In the Homecoming game against Walpole, the team won by a heartbeat at the final seconds of the fourth quarter. Despite their loss to Milton on Thanksgiving Day, they were still off to the Superbowl for the first time ever.

Time will tell, on the field surely fort and an outstandcome. The team opened its season against the Norwood Mustangs, fast track to success. Norwood 20-0, proudly commented, opener that Wamps played in my tenure." though there were Wellesley and victories carried the Homecoming

With co-captains Nislo Galvao and Lester Wade leading the team, the Wamps were on their way to the Superbowl. Also, key players like Lee Carlson, Matt Thompson, Matt Cusack, and quarterback Ray Sartre ran the extra mile to make a dream become a reality. The whole team's winning spirit and determination lifted their fans off their seats and made everyone all proud. Maryann Ziemba

GIRLS SOCCER

The last time the Braintree girls soccer team beat Needham no members of the current team were alive. For the past eighteen years soccer teams have tried to beat Needham but all efforts led to defeat. This year, however, the story changed. The team started the season eight of the first ten a slump and began losing to previously defeated teams. Luckily the showcase season start qualified the team for the tournament where they regained their lost ground. In the first game Braintree 1. This game boosted confidence and moral for the competition encounter. In the second game, Braintree played their best game of the season against an equally skilled Falmouth. Unfortunately lady luck glanced away from Braintree during the game ending shootout, they lost 2-3. Although the season had its ups and downs the final record was 11-7, the best record ever for a Braintree girls team.

SUPERBOWL

This year was the year for the football team's time to shine, setting new records by finishing the season with the first winning record in 15 years. They won the first Carey Division title in 25 years and they participated in their first Superbowl in school history. It was a long ride for the football team, which boasted 23 proud seniors.

Hard work was the team's key to success. Before the start of regular practice, the team to achieve throughout the to win the Carey Division planned to win every competition. Thirdly, least four shutouts. Fourth, all their opponents, was to win a Superbowl

COMMUNITY

Service With A Smile

The old Thayer Public Library was torn down and a new, more modern library will be built this summer. A new skate park will be created for rollerblading and skateboarding as well. The old landmark, the Olympian Diner, was leveled to make way for a new Osco Drug Development.

Many people made significant contributions to the community this year. As volunteers for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (MSPCA), students from Project Prove visited residents in Braintree nursing homes. They brought with them animals from the center. "These visits make everyone happy and help the students to learn to care for animals and to give to others as well as to improve their communication skills," explained Mary Jane Farley, Project Prove teacher.

The Student Council, National Honor Society, and Special Services Department along with nearly every club at the high school joined in to raise money, food, and gifts, for needy families in the community. This Adopt-A-Family Program was an overwhelming success this year.

Students and staff are proud of the services they have given to the community. So proud they are Walking On Sunshine. -Denise Hassie

WEYMOUTH

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Yearbook Staff would like to acknowledge some people who helped in the making of Our Time to Shine, 1999. We would like to thank John Carrier, our yearbook representative, for his technical assistance and general help to the staff. Also, thanks to Mr. William Wassel, headmaster, for his generous donation of a camera. We greatly appreciated Mrs. Roxanne Griffin's helping hand in purchasing a PC for the yearbook room. Mr. Mark Jackson provided moral support during deadline time, and he was also a big help in setting up our computers. Mrs. Joan Carroll was always there for our emergency questions with the computers, and without her, we may never have printed anything. Thanks, also, to Nicholas Studios, for providing candid pictures of the Junior Prom. We appreciate greatly Linda Parker's contribution to the yearbook - she brought in almost $1,500 in commercial ads. We also want to acknowledge Mrs. Jane Sollogub, who helped us by taking extra photos whenever we needed it.

Thank you to all these people who helped make the yearbook happen!

APOLOGIES

We would also like to apologize for the errors that are found in the yearbook. We are sorry that several of the superlatives pictures could not appear in color, because of lack of space. We apologize that we mixed up the activities list of Michelle Donahue and Nichole Donahue. For any misspelled names, we are very, very sorry. To anyone else we have unknowingly offended, we apologize.

A FINAL NOTE: The Yearbook staff and the Class of 1999 wish to thank Janine Tangney for putting in all those hours to make this yearbook possible.

Four Years Gone By In A Flash

Entering the building on freshman orientation day, many new students were at least slightly nervous about spending the next four years of their lives at BHS. Somehow the hallways seemed a whole lot larger than in middle school, people carried much larger backpacks, and it seemed hazardous to linger at locker sections. They wondered how they were going to make it to next class, let alone get good grades for the term.

But then sophomore year came around, and then suddenly junior year, and the fears of ninth grade disappeared. Students found themselves so much more adjusted than they ever thought they'd ever be - participating in clubs and sports, working hard in their classes, and earning money at their jobs. Somehow things had worked out and life was no longer scary.

When senior year came around, students could not believe that time had gone by so fast. They were ready to face life beyond high school - college or work. Some were even reminiscent of freshman year. The four years had gone by in a flash.

Janine Tangney

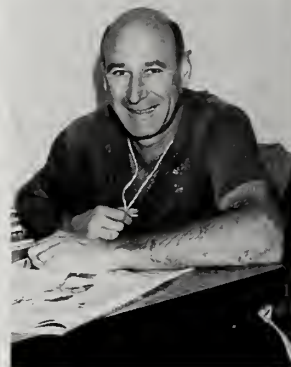

Mrs. O'Connell was truly an asset to BHS, and her contribution to BHS will always be appreciated. She will be missed by students and faculty alike. Ha sido un placer tener la como profesora, adios y buena suerte!

Voted "Most Spirited Teacher" in 1998, Ms. Patricia McKay will be retiring in October after forty years of dedication. Her everyday pleasantness will be missed greatly. The future students of BHS will definitely be at a loss with the absence of Ms. McKay. Best Wishes to her!

RIGHT:

Mr. Schuhwerk's outlandish outfits will no longer be seen in the hallways or at sporting events as he leaves the BHS athletic department and goes into retirement in December.

 Female boxing gained popularity. Women brought a freshness to the sport which may soon become a part of mainstream boxing.

After a 14-year basketball career, superstar Michael Jordan retired in January. Considered by many to be the greatest basketball player in history, he won five MVP awards and six NBA Championships with the Chicago Bulls.

 Chinese gymnast Sang Lan was paralyzed while warming up for the Goodwill Games in New York. Her Olympic dreams were shattered, but she found comfort with the family that cared for her until her own could arrive.

SAFE PROM WEEK

KEEPING PROM WEEK SAFE

As prom rolls around, so does safe prom week. Thanks to the hard work of the school nurse, Ms. Marilyn Smith, Braintree High had its annual safe prom week this spring to promote the message to not drink and drive for the prom. Members from S.A.D.D. do something different everyday to show the students how drinking alcohol can affect their lives. S.A.D.D. members wore their S.A.D.D. t-shirts on Monday as a sign of unity. On Tuesday members and other students made the pledge to not to drink and drive. On Wednesday S.A.D.D. members sold carnations for a dollar demonstrating their support for the pledge not to drink and drive. On Thursday juniors and seniors gathered in the gym to watch the performance of The Impromptu Players. They came and put on four skits that involved drugs and alcoholic situations that teenagers sometimes face. These four actors were all recovering alcoholics themselves. They shared their stories and experiences with us to try to teach our students the consequences that alcohol and drugs can have on them. For Friday, the day before the prom, the Grim Reaper came to visit BHS. Tony Mazzeralla was Grim Reaper for the day. He went around every 15 minutes taking certain students out of class, symbolizing the reality of someone getting killed every 15 minutes by drunk drivers. S.A.D.D. members hoped that students of BHS will make the right choice and not drink and drive.

A WORLD OF HONORS

THE BRAINTREE HIGH SCHOOL NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY sponsored its annual Teacher Appreciation Tea for the faculty this Spring that included a sad farewell to Spanish teacher, Mrs. O'Connell as she retires from over a decade of teaching. As teachers and students shared the delicious goodies together, they paid tribute to the dedicated and caring teacher. Mrs. O'Connell's years at BHS were truly special and she will be dearly missed. Vice President of the Honor Society, Liz Glynn gave a heart warming speech honoring Mrs. O'Connell's work at BHS. Beautiful flowers and plants were given out as door prizes and everyone enjoyed the afternoon of social elegance. Thanks to Mrs. Skill and the members of the National Honor Society, the Tea was a great success. -Maryann Ziemba

GRADUATION

"On Wings of Eagles"

The ceremony itself was held on a picture perfect Saturday afternoon, with hardly a cloud in the sky. Some members of the class celebrated the occasion with beach balls and foghorns. Others felt that such behavior was disrespectful. "They should save that stuff for when people are applauding, not when people are speaking," explained graduate Eileen Kelly.

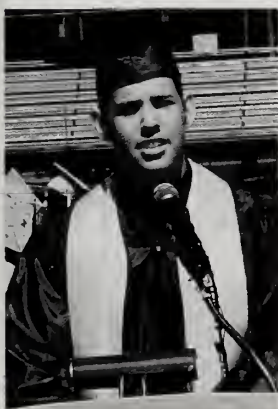

Several of the day's speakers emphasized the leadership roles that the class had exhibited, not only in their senior year, but throughout their four years at the high school. Superintendent Peter Kurzberg praised the class for their seemingly impossible positive reaction to the tragedy at Columbine High School. Additionally, Headmaster William Wassel praised the graduates for their extensive charity work. "The Adopt a Family project," Mr. Wassel said, "reached new heights with the class of 1999 leading the charge."

If this graduating class could be summed up in a simple caption, the caption would perhaps read, "The class of 1999, defying all expectations." This was the class that proved in its freshman year that the student council elections were not always popularity contests. The class officers creatively organized the first truly successful talent show sophomore year. Even the Theatre Guild sold out a matinee performance for the first time this year, with seniors dominating the company. Despite pricey prom tickets, instead of a reduced attendance, the class rallied to have record numbers of people attend the dance. In addition, this class has the third largest percentage of students seeking higher education in Braintree High School history.

And this all came to a close on Saturday, June 5th. The graduates could take solace in the knowledge that their class had not simply left the high school, but it left the high school a little better than when it arrived. Also, the graduation ceremony made it evident that anyone who remembers this year's class will do so fondly, and with a smile on his or her face. The Class of Nineteen Hundred and Ninety Nine truly left on wings of eagles. Tim Clark

Geoff Stevens, salutatorian, urges students to explore the world and new opportunities without fear. McGrath

Ryan Grow, president of the student council, advises the senior class to celebrate the past, and look forward in anticipation to the future. McGrath

COLOPHON

Volume 57 of The Wampatuck was published in a limited edition of 325 copies in the book and an additional 15 page supplement was delivered in the fall. The magazine covered activities and events that occurred after the February deadline. The books were printed by Herff Jones, 525 Boyd School Road, Gettysburg, PA 17325.

The edition cost approximately $20,000.00 to publish and contained 32 pages of color. Individual copies were sold for $45.00 prior to December 1. Name stamping was available at a $3.00 cost.

The cover was designed by plant artists and students. Jonathan Franklin created the cover photo. The cover was printed in a four color litho process.

The book was produced using Adobe PageMaker 6.5 on a variety of Macintosh and Hewlett Packard computers and printers. Copy was written using MacWrite II and Microsoft WordPad.

Portrait photography was handled by McGrath Studios, 1 Perkins Ave., Brockton, MA 02041. McGrath Studios also provided candid photos for each section. Photographers Amanda Petitti, Christine Cooper, and Melissa Goldman did the remaining candid photography that appeared in the book.

Mrs. Noreen Sullivan was the faculty advisor. Janine Tangney was editor-in-chief, Lamele was layout and student life editor, Tim Clark was copy and academics editor, Palwala was clubs and index editor, Lester Wade and Erin Carroll were the sports coordinator. Denise Hassie was community life editor.

Braintree High School is member of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, the Scholastic Press Association, and Yankee Pen. The Wampatuck has received many the past years from CSPA and NSPS.
